ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The production of an alumni directory is a major undertaking and would have been impossible without the generous assistance of the following individuals: June Manning, my Administrative Assistant, Lee Hanson of Development Services, Harriet Smith of the Law Alumni and Development office, and Gretchen Lee, a Washington University undergraduate student. I wish to thank each of them for their time, effort, and commitment to the project.

A LETTER FROM THE DEAN

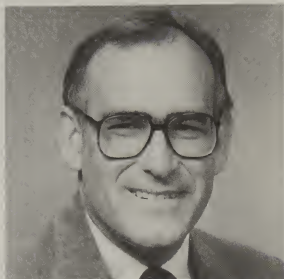

Dear Fellow Alumni:

The 1985 Alumni Directory of the Washington University School of Law marks a milestone in our alma mater's continuing effort to serve as a resource for all who passed through its halls. This Directory is our second effort in recent years and I think you will share my view that it is a much improved resource.

The Alumni Directory has many uses and we hope you will find the new format appropriate to all of them. One fact the Directory documents is the extraordinary geographic diversity of our graduates. Hopefully, when you need to contact an attorney in another city, the Directory will serve as a handy resource to put you in touch with another outstanding attorney. A second fact revealed by this Directory which comes as a jolt to those of us who graduated before 1973 is the tremendous number of alumni. Over 4000 living alumni are included in this Directory, more than half having graduated in the last thirteen years. School records reveal that the first class (1869) had eleven graduates and commencement exercises did not include fifty graduates until the record shattering class of 1925 (60 graduates). Since my sixty-seven classmates and I received diplomas in 1972, the School has averaged just under 200 graduates each year.

The law school is constantly changing and evolving. I have seen enormous changes during the seventeen years since I first stepped into January Hall. Not all those changes have been for the better (I for one miss January Hall), but on the whole the School has vastly improved since my student days. The School enters the last half of this decade in superior academic condition. The faculty is committed to excellence in classroom teaching and has never been more active in their scholarly pursuits; the students are bright, energetic and hard working—not without a familiar complaint or two—and show a real appreciation for the quality of the education they are receiving. The alumni continue to increase their involvement in the school and financial support for it, and, even more important, enhance the school's reputation by their own achievements and success.

These first weeks of my acting deanship have included numerous opportunities to talk with alumni of all ages. I have been struck by the common thread of our experiences during our separate times here. If change is the prevailing characteristic of the law school, then continuity is surely the quality that has made change a continuously positive force. The faculty, students, and alumni are the law school, and alumni stories are invariably about their teachers and classmates. Continuity is found in the stories, the detailed description of a conversation with a teacher over sixty years ago and the impact it had on a brilliant career; the humor, the description of classroom scenes repeated by different generations of students with only the names changed by the passage of time; and the affection, affection for the personal friendships and professional relationships which began here and have enriched us all.

Today's law school has its own sense of continuity. Over two-thirds of our living alumni will recognize the names Miller, Dorsey, Mandelker, Becker, Gerard, Swihart and Jones. Current students and recent graduates have their own stories to tell about their days in Mudd Hall. I challenge you to look through the list of your classmates in this Directory and not smile as some incident comes to mind about your experience at Washington University School of Law. I hope you will share it with me when we meet.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "Philip D. Shelton".

Philip D. Shelton
Acting Dean

ABOUT THE DIRECTORY

The School of Law Alumni Directory is divided into four major sections so that law graduates may be located by name, class year, geographical location, or specialty. Only living alumni and those with known addresses are included.

Alphabetical Listing

The biographical entry includes a listing of the degree received from the School of Law and class year. If two addresses are listed for an alumnus or alumna, the business address precedes the residence address. If only the residence address is listed, it is preceded by a lower case r. If only the business address is listed, it is not specifically identified. Married alumnae are listed under both their married and birth names.

Class Year Index

This section lists alumni by their class year for each program of study at the Washington University School of Law. If known, the state in which the graduate works follows the name. Married women are listed in the class year section by their birth names with their current names in parentheses.

Geographic Index

This section lists the name and class year of alumni by the state and the city in which they work. Foreign addresses are listed under International, by country. Married women are listed by their current names. Alumni are listed by their business addresses. Listings are by residence address if only that address is known.

Address Changes

Please use the cards at the back of this directory to bring corrections to our attention or to notify us of address changes.

For Your Privacy

This Directory is only for official University use, and for individual communication of a personal nature between alumni listed herein. Use of this Directory for any other purpose, including, but not limited to, reproducing and storing in a retrieval system by any means, electronic or mechanical, photocopying or use of the addresses or other information contained in this Directory for any mailing, is strictly prohibited and is in direct violation of copyright.

Specialty Listing

Some respondents indicated a specialty in practice; however, the list is not inclusive.
